

CREATIST OF ALL THINKERS DEAD

Herbert Spencer, Famous as Philosopher and Scientist, Passes Away at the Age of Eighty-three.

HIS SICKNESS BUT
OF BRIEF DURATION.

In Spite of a Frail Physical Constitution He Had Managed by Extreme Care to Prolong His Life.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—Herbert Spencer, the greatest of modern thinkers, died this morning at his home in Brighton at the age of eighty-three. He was unconscious during the final hours of his illness and death came without pain while a few close friends and relatives were at his bedside.

That he attained such an extreme age was due to careful living, for as a youth he was not strong. Considering all things his health was remarkably good until a few months ago, when his strength began to decline. Not until a few days ago was his condition considered critical.

It was his desire that not much should be said of his illness, and anxious friends received little word from the bedside. All knew, however, that his illness was critical, for for several days the family physician was in almost constant attendance and other noted physicians were called in consultation.

The newspapers all publish long appreciations and anecdotes of Mr. Spencer, whom they universally describe as the "last of the great thinkers of the Victorian Age."

The arrangements for the funeral will be made to-day, and it is thought probable that his body will be taken back to Derby, the place of his birth, for burial.

A Family of Teachers.
Herbert Spencer was born in Derby, England, April 27, 1820. He came of a race of teachers, his grandfather and father having belonged to that profession. As a boy his health was not good and he was not adept at school. Very closely. The father had more expanded views on the subject of teaching than the majority of his class seventy years ago and he directed his son's education, teaching him, however, in great measure to select his own studies.

When he was thirteen he was placed in charge of an infant school. Thomas Spencer, rector of Hinton, and there his education may be said to have begun.
From an early age natural history possessed very great attractions for the future philosopher, and his father had encouraged him in making collections, conducting chemical and electrical experiments and working out new inventions.
Spencer was irresistibly drawn toward those studies in which he was destined to win fame that can never be dimmed.
The Nonconformist of that year contained a series of letters from him on the "Proper Education of the Young," which attracted wide attention, and in 1848 he became assistant editor of the Economist.

He was then in his twenty-eighth year, "Social Statics" was given to the world in 1850. In this work he wrought out in more scientific form the views enunciated in his earlier essays and letters on government. Embodied in it were theories on the land question which he has since abandoned. After this he devoted himself altogether to writing, contributing learned and philosophical articles on various subjects of current and speculative interest to the principal English reviews.

The "Philosophy of Style" was his next work. In it he treated his theme from a scientific point of view which no one of his predecessors had attempted.
He then wrote the series of articles which were afterward collected and published under the title "Education, Intellectual, Moral and Physical." This volume had a very large sale, and the system of philosophy he was afterward to unfold was foreshadowed in it. In fact, through his writings almost from the very beginning his course of thought was systematic and ran to one central point—the principle of evolution.

In regard to education, he held that the order in which the faculties develop should be observed, and that the fact should precede the explanation.
From political and educational subjects he turned to the study of the mind in 1869, and in 1875 published "The Principles of Psychology," which Mr. John Stuart Mill said was his opinion "the finest example we possess of the psychological method in its full power."

The doctrine of evolution was applied in this work to the science of mind, and the question was raised that the mental faculties have been developed by experience through the contest of hereditary organisms and the struggle for survival, changes in great periods of time. The work was too abstract for the general public and it made very little impression.

By this time Mr. Spencer had formed a conception of evolution in its broad relation and in 1881 he was convinced that it was a universal process dependent upon the laws of matter and force and susceptible of formulation.

Encouraged by Great Men.
Mr. Spencer at once resolved to write a series of works which should scientifically and systematically explain the phenomena of nature, life, mind and society from the point of view of evolution.

Still, Grotes, Huxley, Fraser, Hooker, Tyndall and Latham, all encouraged him to make the effort, and declared that he was eminently fitted for the great task. One great obstacle presented itself at the very beginning—his very modest financial resources. He had overestimated his income to the tune of philosophy, but his books brought little or no return to him in a pecuniary way.
John Stuart Mill used his influence toward obtaining a pension for him in the India Office, but the effort was unsuccessful. Positions in other departments of the Administration were offered him, but he had views on government which compelled him to see a master of conscience to decline them.
He would have taken an appointment of pension, but the place went to some one who, while more political in tentions, was more powerful.

Given up all expectation of office, he determined to begin his great undertaking and set himself to work. It took twenty years for its completion. The substance was written in the last years of his life, and he at once said that it was his best work.

BONDSMEN GIVE UP LAMAR'S RELATIVE

Brother-in-Law Smith Named in the McMahon Assault Case Turned Over to Sheriff and Placed in Jail.

FREEDHOLD, N. J., Dec. 8.—Bernard Smith, one of the four defendants in the James McMahon assault case, has been surrendered to the authorities here by his bondsman, Charles McCus, of Lakewood, and George Elliott, Mayor of Salem. Smith was under $5,000 bonds and his bondsman went before the Clerk of the County Court and Smith was subsequently turned over to the sheriff and lodged in the county jail.
The trial of Smith, his brother-in-law, David Lamar, "Monk" Eastman and Joseph Brown, charged with assault upon McMahon, formerly coachman for Lamar, at Long Branch, was to have been begun before Judge Hensley in the Monmouth County Court on Monday next.

The surrender of Smith, it is expected, will be followed immediately by habeas corpus proceedings, which will be taken in a higher court and the trial will thus be delayed until a decision has been rendered in the Smith case.

MILK WAGON DRIVER ASLEEP.
The driver of a milk wagon in Jay street, Brooklyn, went to sleep to-day and failed to notice the approach of Hook and Ladder Truck No. 88. Driver Matthew Belford, who was strapped to the seat of the fine truck, turned his horses quickly to one side to avoid the milk wagon, and in doing so the truck uprooted a lamp post and a telegraph pole.

The truck came to such a sudden stop that Belford was slightly injured by the severe shock and the two horses were scratched and jolted. The alarm of fire was from Front and Fulton streets, and by the time Truck No. 88 was ready to proceed to its destination it was too late.

POLICE SAVE MAN FROM ANGRY MOB

Boy Alleges Turner Held Him by the Ears in Front of Approaching Trolley Car, Threatening Him with Death.

George B. Turner, thirty-five years old, who said he had no home, was rescued from an angry crowd at Third avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street, last evening, by Patrolman Haggerty, of the East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street station, and looked up.

Turner was holding nine-year-old Willie Mullarney, of No. 2418 Second avenue, by the ears in front of an approaching trolley car, threatening to kill the boy.
The boy said he had been sent on an errand to the grocery by his mother, with his brother Jimmie, eight years old. He accidentally brushed against Turner as he was running, and, he swore, the man seized him by the ears and said he would have him killed. The crowd saw the man holding the child and was beating and kicking Turner when the patrolman arrived.

Turner told Magistrate Baker in Harlem Court to-day that the boy "batted" into him, knocking his wind out. He said the boy fell, and he fell on top of him, and was trying to pick up the boy, when the crowd set on him.

The boy's ears were out and bruised when he appeared in court, and Magistrate Baker believed him in preference to Turner. Turner was held in $500 bail for his good behavior for six months.

GIRL HIT BY CAR DIES OF FRIGHT

Seven-Year-Old Margaret Driscoll Run Down by Brooklyn Trolley, Expires, Although Not Seriously Injured.

Margaret Driscoll, seven years old, of No. 283 Eighth street, Brooklyn, died of fright after being knocked down and dragged several yards by a car of the Fifth avenue line, not far from her home.

Margaret had been sent on an errand by her mother, and was hurrying across Fifth avenue when a car came along.
She tried to cross in front of this car, and was caught by the fender. Thomas McHale, the motorman, tried at first to stop his car in time, and then, when he saw it was impossible, leaned over the front of the car to catch the little girl. He missed her, and she was dragged along by the fender, which caught her dress.

"Mamma! Papa! Save me!" she cried.
When the car was stopped she was carried to a drug store near by and an ambulance summoned from the Boney Hospital. She was dead when the surgeon arrived. Dr. Stone examined her, but could find no evidence of injuries sufficient to cause her death, and gave it as his opinion that the child had died from shock caused by fright.

McHale was scolded by the threats made by the neighbors and bystanders and hastily mounted his car and started away. A policeman was sent after him to arrest him.

SCOTTI RELEASED FROM CUPID'S CHAIN

Miss Mary Britton Leavy, to Whom the Popular Baritone Was Betrothed, Announces that Engagement is Broken.

Miss Mary Britton Leavy announces that she has released Sig. Scotti, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company, from his engagement and that he may wander away heart free.

The news of their betrothal was made more than a year ago and the wedding was set for October last. Scotti did not put in an appearance for the concert tour begun at that time by Duss, and it was understood that the wedding had been postponed until some time this winter.

Miss Leavy is a beautiful blonde, who graduated four years ago from the Convent of the Sacred Heart, in Manhattan. She is a stepdaughter of Nathaniel Hess, of No. 141 West Seventy-first street. She became acquainted with Scotti at the home of the late Robert Dunlap.

Both parties to the broken engagement decline to discuss the matter.

EAGLES HAVE A NEW EYRIE.

Established at Newtown, Where Sam Ellenbogen is Waylaid.

Sam Ellenbogen, Mayor of Canal street and the Worthy Outside Guard of the Order of Eagles, was waylaid last night in Newtown by several "ruffians." He arrived home late this morning somewhat battered, but with a distinct knowledge of the identity of his assaults.

With P. H. Nolan, Debe Marley and several other members of the Grand Eyre of Eagles, Ellenbogen went to Newtown to install the officers of a new eyrie organized there by Assemblyman Joseph Sullivan and Borough President Joseph Cassidy.
Sam got lost in the wild and had a sleep. He was traced by his hood snoring and set upon by the "ruffians."
The new eyrie was christened Queens County Eyrie and has a membership of nearly thirty.
